Whitehall, November 24.

THE following Address of the Principal and Professors of the University of Edinburgh, having been transmitted by Dr. Robertson, Principal, to the Right Hon. Henry Dundas, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department, has been by him presented to the King: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's loyal Subjects, the Principal and Professors of the University of Edinburgh, consider it as our Duty, in this first Meeting of the Senatus Academicus after our annual Vacation, humbly to approach the Throne, in order to express our firm Attachment to your Majesty's Person and Government, and to declare our high Estimation of that excellent Constitution which was established by the glorious Revolution, for the Preservation and Security of which the illustrious House of Hanover was seated on the British Throne.

Sensible of your Majesty's uniform Attention to the Happiness of your People, and to the Maintenance of their Rights and Liberties, Religious and Civil, and most sincerely thankful for the many Blessings we enjoy under your auspicious Reign, we, from the Heart, reprobate every Principle and Opinion subversive of regular Government, and inconsistent with public Peace and good Order.

In pursuance of your Majesty's Royal Injunction, flowing from a provident Solicitude for the Welfare of your People, we shall, as the most effectual Means in our Power to check the Progress of such Opinions, labour, with increased Assiduity, in instilling into the Minds of the Youth under our Care such just Sentiments with respect to the Nature of Society, as may early animate them with the Love of their Country, with Reverence for it's Laws, and with Loyalty to their Sovereign, and may form them to act their Part in Life with Credit to themselves, with Utility to the Public, and with Honour to the Seminary of Learning in which they were educated.

Signed in Name, and by Appointment of the Senatus Academicus,

William Robertson, Principal.
